

JEHROUM WOOD is a sustainability solution professional. With expertise in natural resource management, he specialises in the application of Geographic Information Systems (GIS) and spatial planning techniques for physical development, resource management & conservation. His work takes specific focus on enhancing multi-stakeholder benefits at every level of society. Jehroum's experience across the Caribbean provides him with a deep & diverse understanding of practical environmental management strategies and their efficacy in Small Island Developing States.