

Arabelle James-Anglies is the holder of a B.Sc. in Chemistry with Education from the University of the West Indies, Cave Hill Campus. Arabelle is a an educator in Chemistry and Mathematics at the CAPE and CSEC level. She is the National Coordinator of Caribbean Youth Environment Network in Barbados where she is responsible for the management of the organization's local chapter. Over her lifetime, Arabelle has volunteered with organizations such as Variety the Children's Charity, Circle K, Project Discovery and the Barbados Homeless and Vagrant Society (now the Barbados Alliance to end Homelessness). She is a firm believer that this life is more than waking up each day and solely engaging in activities to benefit oneself, as it is important to give back to one's community. She aspires to pursue a career in Education and write Educational policies for Barbados and the wider Caribbean region. When she is not busy enrolling in a new course, teaching her beloved students, managing a youth organization, planning a beach cleanup, or reading educational policies, she enjoys hiking and swimming at the beach. Arabelle lives by her quote, "You have not truly lived, until you have helped someone."
